

PICTURE COVERS – REAL BATS

FRUIT BATS

In chronological order by release dates

PC-BTR-FT1 France ca.1960s

LP: Johann Strauss – LA CHAUVÉ-SOURIS

Perf: Orchestre et Choeurs de l'Opera de Vienne (Classical)

Label: Musidisc 30 CV 1013

Photo: (Color) Laguens

Notes: This grotesque cover photo is of a stuffed museum specimen of a flying fox bat which has its dried wings stretched out to the maximum and its mouth wide open. The bat is backlit by a red spotlight, which can be seen through its translucent wings, and the whole is superimposed on a night sky over a mass of silver and turquoise Christmas tree balls, which are perhaps meant to represent champagne bubbles.

PC-BTR-FT2 United States 1976

LP: I LOVE A MYSTERY – THE TEMPLE OF VAMPIRES

Perf: Russell Thorson, Jim Boles, & Tony Randall (Spoken Word)

Label: Radiola 2MR-6263 (2X LPs) (Gatefold cover)

Notes: The cover photo shows a tight pack of four flying foxes (Rousettes) hanging from a tree limb. They all have their eyes wide open. The same photo in black & white is printed on all the yellow labels.

This radio drama is a mystery tale and does not involve bats in any way.

D. Russian Bootleg CD: PROUD LIKE A GOD
Gun Supersonic SUPERSONIC 012

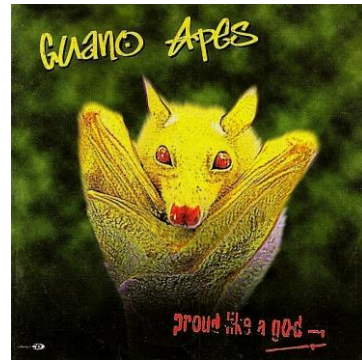

Cover Design: FUEGO-Ateliers & Friedel Murders

Notes: Looking up at a yellow-tinted Rousette bat that is hanging down with folded wings in a green space. The bat's eyes and nose have been colored red. These four releases all used this bat cover.

The Guano Apes were Alternative Rock / Modern Rock band from Gottingen (Germany), formed in 1990.

This group used a stylized bat cover on several of their 2003-2004 CD releases (see under Stylized Bat Covers – Europe) and also under Bat Picture Discs.
