Comp: Yoko MIWA

Yoko Miwa (piano)

Greg Loughman (bass)

Prod. Co: 3D Records

Rec. Date: June 19-20, 2002

Time: 7:27

CD: FADELESS FLOWER

3D MTCJ 3009 (Tk 3)

Notes: This jazz pianist performs in Boston, Mass. and teaches jazz on the faculty of the famous Berklee School of Music. One critic commented on this piece – “Blues in the Cave” combines her artful way of constructing a solo with a down home feeling.” (Anon. n.d.)

The 30-second Web site audio clip heard shows this piece to be a romping, “strutting blues.” The piece is in no way related to the Sidney Bichet Dixieland number (see under Jazz Music – Dixieland).

There was a jazz nightclub in the South End of Boston called, The Cave. (Anon. 2011)

CD: 100 YEARS OF FLIGHT

Kufala 96 (2XCDs) (Disc 2 – Tk 2)

Notes: A Boston-based collective centered around electric bassist and guitarist Mike Rivard doing a live recording in the Lizard Lounge.

A medium-paced funky romp that is coupled here with another piece titled, "Actual Smiles." The 30-second audio clip provided a funky bass with a knocking percussion backing the guitar as it doodles down the stretch followed by the slide guitar soloing.

Samson Music CG 01952 (Tk 8)

2. CD: ROOM WITH A GROOVE (2003)

Liquid 8 12103 (Tk 11)

Notes: A mainstream, smooth jazz rendition of the Steely Dan rock song (see the 1976 original under Rock Music – Progressive – The Caves of Altamira). Solos on guitar, tenor & soprano saxes, nice mixes of instruments working off each other.

The Allmusic critic called this "haunting electric guitar driven moods" that explore "The Caves of Altamira." It is assumed that the 2003 version is the same as the one released on the 2000 compilation CD.

The Paleolithic at cave, Cueva de Altamira, located in Cantabria in Northern Spain is a World Heritage site and is no longer open to the public. A replica cave with the polychrome paintings on the ceiling has been constructed next to the museum not far from the actual cave.

Soul Coast SC 88002 2 (Tk 11)

B. American CD: WALKIN' INTO THE SUN (1993)

Soul Coast 9359-2 (Tk 11)

Notes: This piano piece begins with powerful chords and keyboard water effects. Emphatic passages, search for themes, series of high notes, long runs with sound of cymbals, works its way to a peak, and gradually tapers to a slow fade.

The beautiful Kalalau Trail is an 11-mile hike that leads from Ke'e Beach to Kalalau Beach along the cliffs of the famous Na Pali Coast on the Isle of Kauai. (Anon. 2014) There are several huge, spectacular sea caves; the one shown here (photo by Steven Whitehead) is the first cave west of the waterfall.

This CD album was described as "one of the most engaging surprises of the year" by Jazziz Magazine and "a showcase for the keyboardist's excellent musicianship" by Jazz Times. (Anon. 2009)

Notes: This was a Los Angeles-based jazz group. The title song on this album "was a perennial hit on the now defunct Los Angeles jazz radio station KKGQ. Artist such as Joni Mitchell and Al Jarreau have named Shelby as an early influence." (Anon. n.d.)

Nothing further is known about the song content. Perhaps the song was inspired by Crystal Cave at the Sequoia National Park.

CD: BAMBOO FOREST

Sugo SRD 9462 (Tk 5)

Notes: Part of a musical journey through the bamboo forest. "Somewhere south of the ancient ruins, lies the 'Lost Caverns,' a place that holds many unexplained mysteries. A vast city of underground tunnels and treasures. But alas, only a few have found their way." (Reid, Liner notes)

Water drops usher in slow tock beats then a short flute theme. A languishing guitar takes a long solo and the flute ambles along nicely. The guitar returns to play shadowy lyric wanderings on the theme backed by the second guitar until all slowly fades.

Steve Reid was co-founder of the jazz group Rippingtons and he also did some crossover work with Supertramp. This Steve Reid should not be confused with the African American drummer of the same name.
