Notes: A concept album of twelve pieces all inspired by sites around Naples: Posillipo, Ischia, Amalfi, Positano, Sorrento, and Capri. The "Blue Grotto" piece is a slow waltz with a lilting, rather bland melody that takes you in and out of the celebrated Grotta Azzurra of Capri. On the German albums it is given the subtitle "Blaue Grotte."

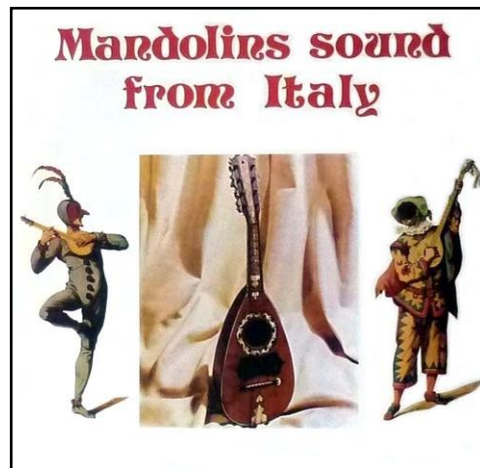

For other recorded music inspired by the Grotta Azzurra, Capri see under World Music – Italy; under Contemporary Music – United Kingdom – Blue Grotto in Capri; and under Popular Music – Germany & United Kingdom.

'A GROTTA AZZURRA *

Popular – Neapolitan – Vocal & Instrumental

Mus: Giacomo RONDINELLA

Lyr: Salvatore DI GIACOMO

Perf: Giacomo RONDINELLA (vocal)

(with Orchestra)

Prod. Co: (?) Fonit; Milano

Time: 4:32

LP: (Title unknown)

Fonit (?)

12" 33rpm

Notes: A slow romantic song that calls upon the Grotta Azzurra in the chorus. It was not possible to transcribe the lyrics.

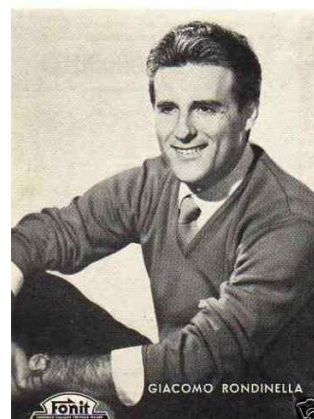

This may have been recorded specially for the 1954 film, "Siamo ricci e poveri," a romantic musical comedy set in Naples and starring Giacomo Rondinella, H el ene R emy, and Gaby Andr e.

The film has a scene with Rino (Giacomo Rondinella) and Lucia (H el ene R emy) alone in a rowboat in what is supposed to be the Blue Grotto of Capri (a studio set where the cave entrance is too high).

While he moves the oars around she sings to him, but her song has nothing to do with the cave.

No information could be obtained as to the title of the LP album or about the single 45 that originally included this song. Fonit was Giacomo Rondinella's usual label early in his career.

Notes: There are other Italian singers named Paola, but nothing could be learned about this particular singer.

This is a very upbeat, gay Italian song with mandolin orchestra backing.

This song was also released in 2010 on a CD compilation of Tony D'Esposito songs, "Capri Love Song and Liscio de Capri," Eterfon label.

EMI France (?) (Tk 10)

Notes: This very popular musical ensemble has put out numerous albums, some of which are classical music. This is basically easy listening music not contemporary art music. Given the title, it may well have been inspired by the celebrated Blue Grotto of Capri, but this could not be verified.

The audio sample had a calm peaceful intro followed by orchestral soaring & rising strings painting a marine picture. Woodwinds carry the theme further then the violins become grandiose. The full orchestra ensemble repeats the theme followed by woodwinds & ensemble.

Notes: The video clip of this song ("Stars in the Caves") on YouTube makes it very clear that the lyrics were partly inspired by real show caves in Italy and Slovenia. Short vignette scenes are included of the entrance shaft of the Grotte di Castellana in Puglia and of the huge entrance of the Škocjanske jama in Slovenia. The association of caves of black inner space with stars of black outer space has always seemed to me as a fascinating poetic concept.

A classic Italian popular song where the singer glides along and then for the chorus suddenly soars off in a burst of ecstatic emotion, typical of many Italian love songs.

The lyrics ask if you have ever looked around, “For dreams and poetry there is no place in this world.” Then the second stanza –

Sai per ogni stella nella notte	Do you know for every star in the night
C'è un graffio nelle grotte,	There is a scratch in the caves
Siamo stati noi	It was us,
Noi che abbiamo scritto sopra un muro	We who have written on the wall,
Abbiamo guardato avanti dritto nel futuro.	We were looking straight ahead into the future.

The last two verses of the chorus –

Ma sotto tante stelle dimmi tu cosa fai?	But under so many stars, tell me what do you do?
Se chuidi gli occhi e non le guardi mai?	If you close your eyes and do not ever look at them?

And the third stanza seems to sum it up –

Io sono convinto che l'amore	I'm convinced that love
È un ponte verso il cielo,	Is a bridge to the sky
E l'energia il tuo motore	And the energy, your motor
E come una ragnatela che tiene il mondo interno.	And like a spider web that holds the inner world.
Vai ci sono altre mille grotte e stelle	Go, there are a thousand caves and stars,
In ogni notte che brillano per noi.	In every night that shine for us.

The music video clip starts with Marco backlit in silhouette and for the chorus has contemporary ballet dancers doing a pas de deux. The Italian lyrics are printed over the images as each verse is sung. For the first two verses of stanza 2 we see a small vignette of the sunrays in the entrance shaft of the Grotte di Castellana with several stars sailing down into the cave. Then for the “scratch in the caves” there is a vignette of some prehistoric wall paintings of two archers from an unknown locality. In the third stanza for the “spider web” they use clips from the film Spiderman and for “a thousand caves” there is a shot looking out of the Schmidlova dvorana into the huge collapse doline, Velike Doline, at the world class Slovene cave, Škocjanske jama. This shot is used again as a small vignette together with three other vignette shots for the closing guitar solo. All together this music video is a highly professional, very successful production that, excepting the Spiderman clip, conveys very well the spirit of the song.

The complete samples on YouTube and on the Ferradini site have a long guitar solo following the last chorus, which is not on the CD. Probably they used the original version, which was on the LP.

L'UOMO DELLE CAVERNE

Popular – Orchestral – Vocal & Instrumental

Mus: G. IMBO

Lyr: Emilio DE SANZUANE & L. BERETTA

Perf: Umberto DA PREDÀ (vocal & guitar)

Prod. Co: D.S.E. Records

Time: (?)

Label: D.S.E. DN 004

Flip Sd: Amore in blues

Spec: 7" 45rpm

Notes: With a title like that, translated as “Man of the Caves” or “Caveman,” this is very probably an Italian offering on the old theme of prehistoric cavemen in modern society. Nothing further is known about this song.

Both the song writer and the singer came from Venice.

Prod: Michele Fedrigotti

Prod. Co: Sony Music

Time: 2:24

CD: SETTE VELI INTORNO AL RE

Sony Music (?) (Tk 1)

Notes: The song title translates as "Route in the Cave." It is the first selection on an album of children's songs: the CD title translates as "Seven Veils around the King."

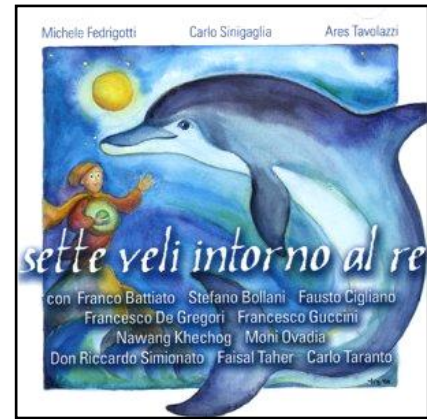

Nothing is known about the content of this song. Two of the musicians here are listed as blues guitarist and jazz bassist, so this music could be jazz. Various other songs on the album are by other artists.
