Notes: Distorted guitar then a heavy beat introduces Kyser's rasping voice singing two stanzas and chorus, first about the ants and then about roaches (see under Rock Song Lyrics). This is a highly insistent, intense rant that comes on very strong and doesn't give you a chance to breathe.

The possible inspiration may have been the 1954 Warner Brothers science fiction movie, "Them!," where giant ants mutated due to atomic bomb tests at White Sands, New Mexico and dug cave-like tunnels near Gypsum Hills. Scientists and the military descended a sinkhole entrance shaft on rope and made their way through the tunnels to the queen ant's chamber where they destroyed the eggs with flamethrowers. See movie still below of the scene in the ant-made catacombs when the military attacks.

One critic called this song – “a powerful blast of pounding drums, unnerving bass lines, guitars of psychedelic contortions and of course, Kyser's burning petrol vocals. You don't have to understand what 'Ants are cavemen living in a brand new world' means to see it all makes perfect twisted sense.” (Sjoblom n.d.)

The band originally formed in Davis, California. Guy Kyser graduated in geology from the University of California in Davis. One writer called his songs – “some of the strangest songs you'll have heard in many a year... obscure melodies, psychotic/ obsessive lyrics.” (Cross 1985) Thin White Rope have been called the “poets of desert floors and dead end streets.”

2. CD: BIRTHDAY BOY

Sony EPC 481203 2 (Tk 6)

Notes: Junkhouse are a Canadian alternative rock band formed in 1989 in Hamilton, Ontario.

A lazy-paced grunge song with a somewhat morbid chorus –

One day I'll slip back into the cave
One day I'll hide deep inside the grave
And it's just one step in the ground
And I'll be gone.

Stanza 3 says that –

Underneath the ground
There's never any crime.

Roch Parisien wrote – “Caves” thick atmosphere explores the inner recesses that we retreat to in times of trauma, sometimes losing our way -- a song dedicated to legendary 13th Floor Elevators casualty Roky Erickson. (Parisien 2016)

This song was written in Austin, Texas and the recording was made in Charlie Sexton's Cave in Austin, also known as the Arc Studio.

Emperor Jones EJ 52 (Tk 13)

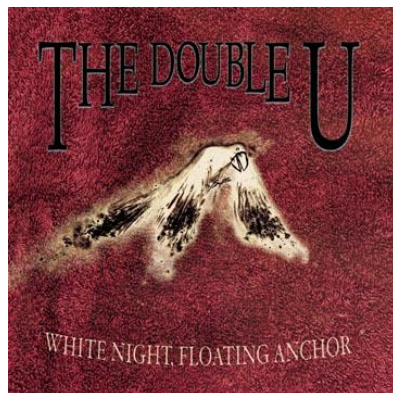

Notes: The sample provided a deliberate plodding beat, imitating the steps of the strong man, someone whispers and mumbles the unintelligible lyrics.

Could it be that the lyrics are talking about Heracles, the Ancient Greek hero, who came out of the cave of the Nemean lion after choking it to death and skinning its pelt for a coat. (See under Spoken Word – Adult Fiction – Mythology – The Twelve Labors of Heracles)

Rudy RR9801 (Tk 4)

Notes: A jumpy, grunge song with clinky rhythm where the lyrics make a clear reference to Plato's Allegory of the Cave –

People living in a cave
Completely in the dark,
No one sees a thing.
Only shadows cast.
Fires to the walls,
Are people who control.

The long coda carries on the rhythm adding hard steady beats.

Rudy RR0001 (Tk 4)

Notes: A remix with more upbeat rhythm remake of their earlier recording of "Plato's Cave" (see just above). The 30-second sample had only the jumpy, nervous rhythm instrumental, no vocal.

One critic spoke of this album – "With his ritualistic chantings in an unknown tongue, Werny could be a caveman admiring his cave paintings with a torch, vocal reverb building standing waves that expand, filling the cave, crystallizing the images in English -- "Like a bird/ Beautiful bird/ Outside my window" -- as synth washes like happy tears and sampled sitar etch the moment into a woodblock suitable for ink."
